"Toot Sweet"

Capital Entertainment

BY CHARLES DARNTON

AFTER all, the boys who fought overseas made a good mess of it in the way of entertainment, if we may take "Toot Sweet," given at the Princess Theatre last night, as the sort of show offered them in the field.

Elizabeth Brice was one of the cheery souls who crossed the ocean with Margaret Mayo's shock unit when the ocean was a very dangerous thing to cross. Miss Mayo kept to her orchestra chair last night. It was characteristic of her to take a back seat. But she knew, more than any perhaps, what the show called "Toot Sweet" had meant to the soldiers "over there"—and George M. Cohan beat the curtain by at least fifteen minutes. In fact, Mr. Cohan was waiting for it to go up after Miss Mayo had settled herself for a jolly night.

To trade on the war would, of course, be a sin. But Miss Brice, Will Morrissey and others who figure in "Toot Sweet" have gone under shell as to "jolly" the boys who were in the thick of it, and the performance they give is a show that comes back to America with banners flying. Miss Brice sang and danced delightfully, and the Salvation Army girls she had with her made the affair as rich as a doughnut. At one time when Miss Brice was cavorting with dancing volunteers Mr. Morrissey felt it necessary to say: "Remember, Elizabeth, they're just young boys!"

Anyway, it was all very good, innocent fun, just as we've had it in "The Better Ole." The backwash of war rippled pleasantly. All the people in the play were fairly young, so they took it lightly.

Clarence Nordstrom was always on his toes as a dancing aviator, and, moreover, he scored a hit with every song that came his way. Mr. Morrissey kept the fun going by various devices, best of which was his violin. In the lexicon of his comparative youth, however, there should be no such word as "dirty." Even Broadway has its limitations. May Be they were amusing in herself and explosive in a burlesque of the familiar

"Lucia" uproar, and other members of the company were enlivening. The lyrics of "Toot Sweet" are by Raymond B. Egan, the music is by Richard A. Whiting, and the book is by Everybody. Very well—everybody has a good time.

COURT STOPS MOVIE FILM.

Upholds Commissioner's Threat to Revoke Theatre Licenses.

Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer yesterday upheld the action of License Commissioner John F. Gilchrist in threatening to revoke the licenses of motion picture houses which shall show the film "Fit to Win," a film shown in training camps to check the social evil. In making his decision, Judge Mayer said that there were still some objectionable features connected with the film. The application for an injunction to restrain Commissioner Gilchrist from preventing the showing of the picture was made by Isaac Silverman, who holds the distributing and exhibition rights. Judge Mayer gave Silverman permission to renew the application.

SILVER TAKES A JUMP.

The Federal Reserve Bank yesterday announced that the export ban and price restrictions on silver had been lifted and that the market was open. The price of commercial bar silver immediately jumped to 1.01 1/2, an advance of 1/2 cent. It was reported that bar sold in Boston at $1.10, but that could not be confirmed in local silver circles. It is believed that the restoration of the open market will mean a much higher price for the metal. It is said that Cerro de Pasco and the Andacoma mines, the leading silver producers, have accumulated a large surplus of the metal and that China is in the market for 25,000,000 ounces.

Start-of-Season Sale denotes, to every one who has come to know this famous series, the most marvellous values. In establishing this record we have created a new standard, which we intend that each one of these sales shall measure up to. This one is no exception in fashion, quality and price, and is one more proof that Hearn offers smartest, newest apparel at prices which cannot be matched.

Beginning at the left of this stunning array of smart frocks, the first sketch shows a satin and embroidered Georgette model in navy, Copen., taupe, black. Next to it is a taffeta with saucy, close-pleated frillings of newest style. It also comes in same colors as frock previously mentioned. Third in the count is another satin softly overlaid with embroidered Georgette. This frock comes in navy, taupe, black, pearl grey, beige and Copen. The smart coat frock, which is next, is a sports dress of crepe de chine. The skirt and vest are white, and the coat may be rose, Copen., turquoise, reseda and navy. Last is a foulard dress in navy, black and Copen. grounds with white figures. No extra charge for alterations.
